this rare primary source account is the story of the hard fighting battalion of the 7th northumberland fusiliers which saw action on the somme passchendaele and in the battle of arras this wonderfully detailed account provides a rare insight into the experiences of the common soldier on the front line during some of the bitterest conflicts of the war unembellished and unwavering in his account francis buckley here records not only the events of the battles he fought in but also provides an emotional tribute to the heroism of the friends he made and lost during his time in the field as well as his fellow troops of the 7th northumberland fusiliers buckley also remembers with great fondness the bravery of the officers and men of the 149th infantry brigade and of the 50th division his recollections here provide a poignant reminder of the true human cost of war in the modern age

this is the final volume of a comprehensive five part work including a multitude of personal accounts of every aspect of the aerial operations on gold junco and sword beaches during d day it relays the sense of relief experienced as allied troops gained a foothold on the continent of europe after d day both by the men caught up in the proceedings and the jubilant civilians on the home front by the end of june 875 000 men had landed in normandy 16 divisions each for the american and british armies although the allies were well established on the coast and possessed all the cotentin peninsular the americans had still not taken st lo nor the british and canadians the town of caen originally a target for d day german resistance particularly around caen was ferocious but the end result would be similar to the tunisian campaign more and more well trained german troops were thrown into the battle so that when the allies did break out of normandy the defenders lost heavily and lacked the men to stop the allied forces from almost reaching the borders of germany in continuing style bowman pays respect to the men who fought in the skies above france on d day this episode of aviation history has never before been the focus of such detailed analysis the five volumes of this series act as a memorial to the individuals who played their own individual parts in the wider proceedings far from being a mere operational record this is the story of the men behind the headlines the reality behind the iconic images of parachute drops and glider formations in 1944 45 capt g h davies served with the hard fighting 53rd welsh division he was an artillery officer in command of a battery of 25 pdr field guns and saw action from normandy to the final surrender of nazi germany capt davies was present at the normandy battles the fierce fighting for s hertogenbosch and the battle of arnhem during the course of the war capt davies kept a diary and also snatched a few photographs on his treasured camera when the opportunity arose capt davies liberated a camera from a fallen ss officer and after the war had the film developed the film contained graphic images of the war from the german side of the line seventy years on from the events the wartime diary the photographs of the guns and the photographs taken by the dead ss officer were the inspiration for the son of capt davies television producer and writer gwilym davies to undertake an emotional return to the battlefields which his father had described in his diary the result of that pilgrimage is an important new book which builds upon the wartime diary and the photographs to produce a powerful record of one man s war service with the guns of the 53rd welsh division the book also contrasts the experience of capt davies with those of the germans on the other side of the line gwilym davies is himself an accomplished photographer and his photographs of the 70th anniversary celebrations and the memorials provide a poignant counterpoint to the events of 1944
